Built when they built houses to last forever, this grand old Californian Bungalow has stood the test of time. Still with it's period features and even a couple of mod cons this home is a great example of the era. The home features 3 double bedrooms, ensuite to the main, lounge with a stunning pressed tin ceiling, split system and a in built wood heater. The formal dining room has a open fire place and double doors that open onto the side deck and pressed tin ceiling. The kitchen has a modern flair with an electric stove, a pot belly and a huge pantry. The home still has the old style arc's, skirts and lead light inserts in some of the windows. There is still plenty of pressed tin ceilings and the home just oozes the charm from the 1920's. A evaporative cooler makes this summer days a lot more comfortable and the power bills are reduced with the 6kw solar power system. Outside the garden is low maintence with a rear deck, double carport, an old style single garage and good fencing. This is a beautiful home and should be on any serious buyers must see list.
